

An Evening of Raag & Taal

Sunday, March 9, 7pm

Enjoy the blissful sounds of sitar and tabla performed by two masters of the tradition

Will Marsh - Sitar

Will Marsh has been a dedicated student of the sitar since 2006. His musical journey led him to the California Institute of the Arts where he became a student of Ustad Aashish Khan and Pandit Swapan Chaudhuri and has since completed his MFA in North Indian Music. Will also is a student of local sitar master Roshan Jamal Bhartiya. Blessed to have such great guidance, Will has been performing and teaching North Indian Classical music in Boulder and Los Angeles since 2010. Currently, Will resides in Los Angeles.

Jeffrey Rodgers - Tabla

Jeffrey Rodgers has been playing tabla since 1974. His long years of devotion to practice and perfection show in his precision, passion and tone. He began his studies under Surendrenath Jena. In 1981 he was fortunate to become the student of the late great tabla maestro Ustad Alla Rakha, and continued to study with his son, Ustad Zakir Hussein, in California and Bombay, India. He has performed with many Indian Music Artists throughout the U.S.A and Canada, and gives private lessons, lecture / demos, and workshops throughout the Midwest.
